

MICHAEL EZGUR bio

Coming from a long family lineage of real estate lawyers, Chicago native Michael Ezgur, 42, knew becoming an attorney was going to play a part in his career plans. During a successful stint working for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and owning his own real estate law practice, Ezgur began to move towards a growing interest in real estate development. What began as a few real estate acquisitions turned into The Terrapin Group (www.terrapingroup.com) one of the top residential real estate development and sales companies in Chicago. Ten years later, Terrapin has projects across the country specializing in mixed use residential and retail, where homeowners enjoy unique lifestyle amenities and great retailers right in their own building. With the real estate landscape drastically changing, Michael sees getting in an RV and surveying different markets first hand as providing him with new knowledge and insight into creating the next phase of Terrapin Properties. Hitting the road with wife Wendi and children Aidan, Charlie and Rosie, Ezgur sees this as “not a trip, but a life event” and is ready to take full advantage of the quality time and exploration.
